Not everyone lunches at a desk. The charity lunching circus got off to a big start last week. Women wore pants and occasional spring coats and suits. Four authors signed books at a lunch for God's Love We Deliver.

A guest rode her folding bicycle to the Morgan Library and Museum's luncheon. She changed out of her cycling shoes outside before checking the bike in the coat room.

Guests at a benefit at the Pierre, for the New York Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Children, wore dresses of many lengths. A guest changed from rain boots to luncheon shoes.
